FADE UP:

(ROY, TEN YEARS OLD ... LYING IN
BED. HE HEARS A MAN AND WOMAN
QUARRELING .. IN THE NEXT ROOM)

LELA: (VO)

I'm tired of it. I'm tired of hearing you say it. I'm tired of watching it day after day -- Have some respect for your own family.

GEORGE: (VO)

I've got respect but only when someone deserves it. Don't I mean anything anymore? Why do you talk to me that way? Why can't you be reasonable?

LELA: (VO)

You're the one who's unreasonable, always want things your own way. It's not fair - I don't want it anymore.

GEORGE: (VO)

I don't care what you want.
Things are going to be different around here now. So get used to it.

COCHRAN:

Good evening, everybody...This is Ron Cochran.

Tonight...a story of conflict. One that exists in the lives of millions of people. Though for each individual the reasons are different...the results too often...are the same. Disillusionment and despair. Ironically, though many of those involved want desperately to be helped...their own fear or ignorance keeps them from it.
But the help is there...waiting to be given. By trained and dedicated people...who every year...work to save...<sup>over a</sup> ~~one~~ million marriages.

DISSOLVE TO:

(ROY AT AN OPEN DOORWAY, LISTENING)

COCHRAN: (VO)

In just a few moments ...

"BATTLE OF HEARTS".

SUPER 35mm INSTITUTIONAL FILM

... on the ARMSTRONG CIRCLE THEATRE.

ACT ONEFADE IN:

TABLE; THE JUDGE IS WRITING ON AN OFFI-CIAL PIECE OF PAPER)

COCHRAN: (VO)

For many, in place of the hope that began their marriage...there is now...
only bewilderment...
And an anger impossible to stop...Feeling there is no way out...the end is inevitable.

(CU-OFFICIAL LOOKING
PAPER. IT READS:
DIVORCE DECREE.)

DISSOLVE TO:

(RECEPTION ROOM...
COMMUNITY SERVICE
SOCIETY OFFICES. A SECOND COUPLE IS TALK-
CASE-WORKER. THEY SHAKE HANDS...AND HUSBAND OPENS THE DOOR
FOR HIS WIFE)

Others...aware of the resources that the community has provided in times of stress...come for help.

Like this couple..who, for the last eighteen months, have been receiving family counseling. For them, the end is now fairly certain.
Their marriage...has been saved.

DISSOLVE TO:
THE DAVIS DINETTE.
(GEORGE, LELA AND ROY
ARE AT THE TABLE...
FINISHING DINNER.
LELA RISES, CLEARS
OFF SOME PLATES
AND SITS AGAIN.

For these two...the end is still unknown.
All they are sure of...is that their marriage is failing. A marriage they would like to save...but don't know how.
Although this man and woman still love one another ... their conflict will soon force them to make a decision.
To divorce... or stay together.

(SUPER CRAWL)

(GEORGE RISES...TAKES
COFFEE CUP AND CROSSES
TO THE LIVING ROOM.
A SEALED CARTON WITH STEREO PARTS IS ON
THE CHAIR. GEORGE
TAKES OUT A POCKET
KNIFE AND OPENS THE CARTON)

(LELA RISES, X'S INTO
THE KITCHEN WITH DISHES AND THEN RE-ENTERS LIVING ROOM)

(GEORGE DROPS SOME
FLOOR)

COCHRAN: (VO)

Like millions of others in the city...there is nothing to set George Davis and his family
apart.

Married twelve years ago..
they spent a two-week honeymoon in Bermuda...and returned to New York to begin what they fully expected would be an idyllic life. But for the past several years, for reasons they do not understand, ~~or even knew~~...the idyll has changed...into an ordeal.

LELA:

George, be careful. You're getting that stuff all over the floor.

GEORGE:

Sorry. That stuff gets into everything.

(LELA X'S INTO DINETTE)

(ROY RISES)

LELA:

Roy ... drink your milk.

ROY:

I'm not hungry.

LELA:

You didn't eat anything for dinner. Don't you feel well?

ROY:

I'm all right.

LELA:

I've got some cookies in the kitchen. Come on. I'll give them to you.

(SHE TAKES ROY INTO THE KITCHEN, GIVES HIM COOKIES AND X'S INTO LIVING ROOM)

GEORGE:

Do you have to do everything for him? Let go of his hand sometime, will you. See what happens.

LELA:

If I didn't give it to him, he wouldn't take it.

GEORGE:

He won't go hungry.

(SITS)

LELA:

You know how stubborn he can be.

GEORGE:

I know.

(LELA X'S INTO DINETTE. SHE TAKES LETTER FROM HER APRON ... HESITATES
...THEN RE-ENTERS LIVING ROOM)

LELA:

George. You remember when I had to go up to school about Roy?

GEORGE:

Yes.

(SHE HANDS HIM THE LETTER)

LELA:

Well now ... they want us again.
Both of us. They say he's been fighting with the other children.

GEORGE:

Well... what do you expect? You let him get away with anything he does. Discipline is what he needs.

LELA:

When can you go with me?

GEORGE:

What for?

LELA:

They want to talk to us. He's your son, too...

GEORGE:

(RISES)

But you'd made him your exclusive property. You don't need me there. You take care of it.

LELA:

All right, I'll ~~take care of it~~
~~-- but you better take care of~~ ~~this bill before our credit runs~~
~~out at the grocery store.~~

I will - but there's something you can't avoid. His grocery bill. Do you think you can take care of that?

GEORGE:

All right.

LELA:

And while you're at it ... I'll need money to get Roy some clothes for school.

GEORGE:

If Roy needs clothes he'll get them. All you have to do is ask for the money.

LELA:

Why do I have to ask you? I'm entitled to money for the house.
Why do I have to come running every time I need a few dollars?

GEORGE:

You don't know how to manage.

LELA:

Aren't you tired of that excuse.
What you mean is ... you like to have me beg. Everything you want ... you buy. New suits ... another car. And now ... a new toy.
How much did that cost?

GEORGE:

Never mind. Just don't start about the car. Or the suits either. I need them for business.
You know that. A man has to look like something.

LELA:

Let him be something first.

GEORGE: (UNDER)

COCHRAN: (VO)

I am something. I know what I'm doing.

It is the same in too many families. Small, bitter

GEORGE: (Cont'd)

COCHRAN: (V.O., Cont'd)

I buy what I want and arguments.
 you don't tell me what Routine ... and endless.
 I can do ... or can't Night after night ... the
 do. eroding away of their

LELA: (UNDER) dignity and self-respect
 You can do what you until finally ... their want ... only when humiliation is accepted your child needs some as a part of their daily clothes, I don't want lives.
 to come begging to you.
 You've got money for everything but your family.

(GEORGE TURNS THE DIAL OF THE
 HI FI AND IT BOOMS FORTH THUNDER-INGLY)

LELA:

George, I'm not finished.

Listen to me --

(GEORGE X'S TO DINETTE CHEST.

LELA FOLLOWS)

LELA:(Cont'd)

~~George, listen to me please.~~ You like it, don't you? Making everyone depend on you. Makes you feel like a man, doesn't it?

GEORGE:

(X'ING BACK TO LIVING ROOM DESK)

How many times do we have to go through that? If you'd stop listening to your mother...

(ROY APPEARS IN KITCHEN DOOR)

LELA:

She's not to blame. You are.
Every time I have to ask for something...you talk about her.
Because you don't want to admit you're wrong.

GEORGE:

All right, I'm no good. Maybe you should have married that teacher you used to go out with.

LELA:

Sometimes I wish I had.

GEORGE:

Go away. Just go away.

(SOUND: A CRASH OF GLASS FROM THE
KITCHEN. ROY HAS DROPPED THE MILK
GLASS. LELA HURRIES TO KITCHEN)

LELA:

By what happened?
Did you hurt yourself?
